The 13th El-Brim-Ick Dash 3miles, 800 feet Sunday 13th January

With only a couple to patches left of the ice which had coated the whole course the previous weekend it was possible for me to give the course a risk assessment and past it as fit to run even if the gradual thaw did mean that it was rather muddy.

Andrew White showed that the hill training available from his new house at Durris has been put to good use as he strode away from the field. Behind him former Scottish Champion, Hayden Lorimer, just got the dip on first veteran, Alan Smith, in a desperate dash to the line while David Armitage belied his age to finish sixth overall!

With eight supervets, nine baby vets, three lady vets and no senior ladies amongst the 33 starters the worrying trend of missing seniors continues.

The Junior Race was abbreviated from its usual distance to accommodate the age of the two runners but where were all the juniors in the 12 to 15 age group?
